

Consolidation of Media

Never before in the history of our nation has the role of the media been so strongly needed, yet so weakened by consolidation. Through the previous deregulation of media ownership, we grow closer and closer to speaking with only one voice, one opinion, and that is truly a danger to Democracy.

It is imperative that this destruction of Democracy's strongest safeguard, namely, a strong and diverse media, not go any further until further study and hearings go into effect.

It is not prudent to take another step forward on this dangerous path without the utmost surety that is the right course for our nation.

Sincerely,
James Cloud
